Space for the essential.

Most companies are enthusiastic about the idea of a paperless office, but are unable to implement it in full because of long-established processes and legal regulations. Instead, archives keep on growing as the result of product liability laws and the long-term archiving and documentation of all business transactions, costing more than just space.

REISSWOLF can secure, categorise and archive your data stock. On the basis of the examined physical data stock, we develop a customised archiving strategy for your company. With our web-based RWAS archive software you can request new storage submissions, files – physical or as scan on demand – labels, access rights and, ultimately, data-protection-compliant destruction at any time and from any location.

REISSWOLF's nationwide high-security archives thus offer – in addition to a space-saving solution – efficient work processes, as the hybrid archiving makes it possible to use analogue data digitally at any time. Because, as we move towards a future where we only work with digital documents, speed and the ability to access information any time, anywhere becomes all the more important.

Living. Data.
